- (1) In L1 studies, do irregular derivational forms behave like irregular inflectional forms? Do regular derivational forms behave like regular inflectional forms? What architecture of the grammar do the authors support as an account of these facts?
- (2) Explain how a reader should interpret Table 2. What conditions were compared in this experiment? What results were found, and what do they suggest about L2 processing of derivational morphology?
- (3) Explain how a reader should interpret Table 3. What conditions were compared in this experiment? What results were found, and what do they suggest about L2 processing of agreement and case morphology?
