

Warm-up wall: What does the word "barbecue" mean to you?

LING 101, M Oct 19 | Follow link from the Daily Syllabus | Posts are anonymous | Click anywhere to add a post

JL SMITH OCT 19, 2020 05:28AM

pig pickin' baby

pulled pork

first thought is the food (NC BBQ is the best <3) have you ever been to a pig pickin??

grilling stuff outside

a cookout

grilling with friends

Barbecue isn't just a food, it's a lifestyle, a reason to breathe, an escape from this cruel world filled with thieves. It's art, the first gift you open on Christmas, a hug from a loved one, everything you've ever wanted, everything you need.

Grilling stuff and putting sauce/spice on it

cooking outside on a grill, a social event

Pulled pork

social gathering where food is grilled outside

a verb that means to cook meat or other foods

on a grill

the action of grilling meat or vegetables outside

Pulled Pork!

I think of the food (pulled or shredded pork). Cooking outside is a cookout haha

grill meat in an open area with friends and family

My initial thought is of the food/flavoring itself like pulled pork but it is also a verb. There's also the meaning of it being a social gathering like "going to the barbecue"

most immediate thought was sauce/flavoring, food on a grill, vegetables and meat strung on a stick, 串

To me it is a good way of cooking and also it is a kind of food, which I really like.

I see it as the verb to cook something on a grill or as a type of flavoring

The action of cooking on an open grill, or food cooked in this way

Verb: to cook in the open

Noun: to refer to the experience of cooking outside

or vegetables) outside on an open grill' -- NC folks, disagree: Go! :)

To me it's a verb and it means 'cook (any meat

※※※※※